15	Key Learning &amp; Teaching Strategy and Methods This course is practical, and the teaching and assessment is structured to reflect this. The purpose of this programme is to equip graduates with the practical and professional skills to enable them to succeed and build a sustainable practice in a constantly evolving industry. Delivered across a 24 hour week studio based teaching will be the predominant delivery method on this programme. A typical week will see students take part in daily technique lessons, which are primarily studio based and designed to encourage students to improve their dance practice through a diverse range of styles and genres.

This dance technique teaching occurs in 'Foundation Techniques', 'Popular Movement Styles', 'Somatic Practices' and 'Chichi Circus', the skills delivered in these key modules inform the work produced in the other modules.

This programme is focussed on developing the students own creative voice, and is structured to support them to use dance to explore their research interests independently. Techniques are applied either to a commercial or creative context. Dance skills will be contextualised within the contemporary and commercial industry throughout the modules, particularly within 'Dancer as Artist', 'Foundation Techniques', 'Popular Movement Styles' and 'Somatic Practices' modules.

Dance techniques are applied by the student to both choreograph and perform original work in the modules 'Music, Devising and Experimentation', 'Choreography in Dance Practice', 'Create and Narrate', and Synectic Dance Making'.

Preparing dancers who can perform in a variety of contexts is central to the ethos of this programme, and this happens from the beginning with public performances in 'Popular Movement Styles' and 'Choreography in Dance Practice' encouraging the student to open a dialogue with an audience. The course exposes students to a wide range of dance styles that reflect the demands of the industry driven by current trends and underpinned by traditional professional training. The programme will deliver a variety of culturally diverse dance styles.

The modules are scaffolded to support the students to devise increasingly complex pieces of work with autonomy by ensuring foundation dance skills and knowledge before supporting devising, interpretation and improvisation. 'Somatic Practices' is central to the experimental nature of Level 5, students creative skills are developed to support the students to identify and pursue their creative interests in range of contexts in 'Create and Narrate' and 'Synectic Dance Making'

To encourage students to develop a culture of self-reflection, personal development and critical practice each practical or performative assessment is contextualised by a reflection, or presentation.

The programme will be delivered over a 24 hour week giving extended studio time to dance technique using professional artists. Practical workshops will incorporate input from industry to prepare the student for activity beyond the programme. These experiences emulate real working practices, introduce the students to a creative network of dance practitioners, and ensures the currency of specialist technique delivery.

Work related learning opportunities are at the core of FD Dance. The course content is developed in such a way as to change the student perceptions of what it is to function within the creative industries and to educate them in strategies to survive within it. Leeds has a strong dance culture, and strong links with Yorkshire Dance, Phoenix Dance Theatre, Leeds Dance Partnership, Northern Ballet, and Leeds Dance Studios enable us to position the students in the local industry.

Throughout the programme the emphasis will shift from tutor-led to student led delivery and self-directed approaches to learning. Students are expected to work on a combination of self-initiated projects and live briefs with external partners to enhance their autonomy and engagement with the creative community. In order to prepare, enable and support autonomous study in these areas students will be given a personal supervisor to provide guidance through the modules.

Digital engagement is embedded throughout, however is particularly prevalent in 'Synectic Dance Making'. Within this module students engage with the wide variety of outlets for dance work, including working with digital and emerging technologies, such as Computer Games, VR, and 360. Student will produce dance within this module for a range of contexts and students will create a show reel of their work to take with them beyond the Foundation Degree, or to add to over the course of the BA (Hons) Top-Up.

Within 'Dance Ethnography' and 'Dancer as Artist', key academic skills will be delivered to support student's transition into higher education from a range of educational backgrounds and experiences. Lectures will be used to contextualise areas of theoretical, historical or conceptual study relevant to dance anthropology. Seminars will be used to support student progression, allowing opportunity for discussion and linking theory to practice, which is the purpose of the academic modules. Tutorials and supervisor sessions provide the opportunity for students to seek further clarification of understanding.

Additional academic support is offered in Academic Skills and Essay Writing Workshops. These additional, non-assessed sessions at level 4 will be supported by the Librarian and offered as a refresher at level 5 will support academic rigour and raise achievement throughout the foundation years.

This foundation in practical and academic skills builds throughout the year. 'Dancer as Artist' in Level 4 will embed personal development skills, such as skills audits, time planning, personal development plans and reflective practice to develop students study skills.

A skills audit is submitted within the first 6 weeks of the programme and forms the initial assessment at Level 4 to support student's transition to degree level study. This will enable the students to successfully manage the workload, yet have a sense of achievement especially through the resolution of ideas through experimentation and practice.

The opportunities for eLearning within the college are strong with a background in the use of VLEs and the introduction of Google Drive, Classrooms and Chromebooks. The eLearning team support staff in the use of this and there are eLearning Staff who have made good use of this VLE and key to this are the positive comments from students about how it has enhanced their learning. The college has provided all HE students with Chromebooks to support the use of Google throughout their studies.

During day-to-day activities, each module will have a Google Classroom created which the students are able to engage with, work will be shared and distributed on the cloud. Online learning is also supported with remote online support using Skype and Google Hangouts.

Typically the 24 teaching hours will be delivered over 4 days, and include 16 hours of technique, 3 hours of research practice, 3 hours of lectures and seminars and 2 hours of tutorials.

Key Assessment Strategy and Methods

Foundation Degree Dance is a highly practical course, which encourages a deeper, more rigorous understanding of the process of dance and dance making. To reflect the practical nature of the programme, there is an emphasis on practical performative assessments to reflect the teaching and the student's specialisms. The dance programme is designed to support and encourage high levels of performative and communicative skills demonstrated through the use of the dancer's body.

To prepare students for industry the performances occur in a range of contexts, from studio performances to peers, industry panels, filmed, in audition scenarios and so forth. This reflects the breadth of situations that they may encounter in professional life beyond the course, and expands the students understanding of the potential outlets for dance work.

Each module has two assessments, and in the practical modules, there is a performative assessment and another to contextualise the students practice within the industry or the student's creative development as a dance practitioner. These assessments are constructed to develop the students as dancers, and to support a reflective developmental practice beyond the course. Students will produce logbooks, statements, narrated performances, deliver workshops and write reflections to contextualise their practice to build a critical relationship with their work.

There is one formal piece of academic writing per year, and this will prepare students for further study. The academic skills required for these assessments are embedded throughout the programme to ensure that students are supported with research and academic writing.

Students are supported by both tutor supervision and peer assessment. Assessments are structured to allow the student to act with increasing autonomy. Student's individual learning abilities are advanced with tutor support. Students will be allotted a personal tutor for their time at Leeds City College, and with their personal tutor, students will produce individual learning plans to support their development as autonomous practitioners.

The tutor will provide formative feedback on student progress at regular Feedback Weeks throughout the year and through the supervisor system, whereby each student has an individual tutor to support their practice. Students are formally assessed at the end of each module and are marked against specific criteria as detailed in each module handbook. Feedback on summative assessment is given in written form.

The Foundation Degree programme is studied over two years and across two levels (Level 4 and Level 5). Each level is 120 credits and 240 credits across the full Foundation Degree. A 20-credit module is equal to approximately 200 hours of student learning time, which includes, tutor contact, independent and group endeavour and assessment time.

Level 4:

Level 4 Modules:

1. Foundation Techniques
2. Popular Movement Styles
3. Music, Devising and Experimentation
4. Choreography in Dance Practice
5. Dancer as Artist
6. Dance Ethnography

Level 4 is practical, and students will be dancing in a range of styles and genres, learning new techniques and approaches, working with professionals, practically exploring the relationship between music and movement, making their first pieces of devised work, and contextualising dance practice within the cultural heritages of different forms of contemporary, classical, ethnic, popular, vernacular and social dances. The purpose of Level 4 is to provide a solid foundation of practical skills before a more experimental Level 5, which will see students developing their practice using a range of new technologies, and experimenting with form and improvisation. Teaching on Level 4 will instil the fundamentals of professional dance practices, and equip the students with the key academic skills to be able to succeed within higher education such as research skills and reflective practice.

The 'Foundation Techniques' and 'Popular Dance Styles' modules will develop the student's technique throughout Level 4. These modules will introduce the students to an eclectic array of movement styles and will provide students with a wide knowledge base. 'Foundation Techniques' will deliver the core principles of a range of dance styles such as Cunningham, Graham, Release, Fusion Dance and Ballet. These key techniques form the basis of the students practical development and inform each of the other modules. For example the skills and knowledge gained in 'Foundation Techniques' will be used by the students to produce their first choreographed sequences in 'Music Devising and Experimentation' (MDE). In MDE, students will explore the interrelationship between dance movements and music, and will explore the impact of using different combinations of different movement styles and audio selections to produce experimental short dance pieces. Students will juxtapose the techniques and movements introduced in 'Foundation Techniques' to explore their potential to communicate with an audience.

Likewise the techniques and genres of dance introduced in 'Popular Movement Styles' will relate to the ideas introduced in 'Dance Ethnography'. Students will learn popular dance styles and techniques whilst exploring the history of dance from an indigenous traditional dance perspective, exploring the cultural, social lineage and history, and how this informs current dance styles. Here, students will begin to understand what motivates them to move in particular ways and consider their own heritage and the relationship that it may have with their dance practice. Within 'Popular Movement Styles' the practical skills based learning is coupled with the understanding of contemporary audiences interpret movement and how to exploit this meaning within their own practice.

Through the 'Dancer as Artist' module, students will consider their career trajectory and personal development by auditing their skills in response to their career aspirations to promote reflective practice, and to get the student to take ownership of their professional development. During this module, students will present a case study of a professional dancer to gain a greater understanding of the working practices of a professional dancer.

During semester two, the students will be formally introduced to choreography in the 'Choreography in Dance Practice' module. Students will gain essential skills and insight into the creative process, from the birth of an idea to a well-resolved piece of work. This module will guide students on how to turn their ideas into constructive, creative, actions, and introduce the student to key approaches to choreography and devising to inform their work at Level 5.

Level 5:

Level 5 Modules:

1. Somatic Practices
2. Chichi Circus
3. Create and Narrate
4. Synectic Dance Making
5. Contemporary Dance in Context

At level 5, there is a strong element of experimentation, devising, and finding your own voice as a dancer. Students are introduced to collaborative interdisciplinary practice, which is central to the dance programme. Students will work with their peers in other creative disciplines to produce work, and with external partners to perform and deliver workshops. Students will begin to broaden their skills set to develop a varied and sustainable dance career beyond the programme. This step up from Level 4 requires the students to consolidate their skills and develop a personal identity as a practitioner to communicate with a real audience.

At Level 5 there is a 40-credit module ‘Synectic Dance Making’ that is a year long module that requires the student to develop and perform dance for in variety of contexts. Students will engage with creating dance for a variety of purposes, and within this module will assume several role, such as an artist, a dance making organisation or creative professional. The student will get practical experience of the range of applications of dance and choreography and this will help the student to develop a purposeful practice beyond the programme, either within industry, or on a BA(Hons) Top-Up. During this module students will engage with a variety of creative approaches and methodologies used to create a range of work. Students will work within several genres and collaborate with other artistic disciplines, which could include producing dance for digital media, the traditional black box, site specific, and dance for TV, commercials and film, gaming, and photography, motion capture and green screen.

‘Somatic Practices’ and ‘Chichi Circus’ provide the practical technique teaching at Level 5 to further develop students techniques and to equip them with the artistry to improvise and devise new work. ‘Somatic Practices’ develops the students contemporary dance skills, and investigates fusion practices, which are increasingly prevalent within current dance practice. The work developed in this module will inform the work that the students devise in ‘Synectic Dance Making’ and the academic module ‘Contemporary Dance in Context’ and students will contextualise some of the practical principles introduced in ‘Somatic Practices’, where students engage with key theories within contemporary dance making.

‘Chichi Circus’ has been developed in response to industry feedback, and the evolving dance industry which incorporates skills from a breadth of performance prates. ‘Chichi Circus’ introduces new and exciting approaches to making live art, students will gain a new skill-set and work across a range of circus skills with a focus on aerial, which is becoming an important skill for a contemporary dancer. ‘Chichi Circus’ enables students to explore and advance beyond the equipment to enhance their dance practice, and to develop more sophisticated sequences.

In ‘Create and Narrate’, students will choreograph new work, and perform it to audiences. This module scaffolds from ‘Choreography in Dance Practice’ at Level 4, as the work produced within this module is more ambitious, and is presented to live audiences rather than the student peer group. Following the performances students will deliver a workshop based on their choreographed piece. This module introduces the students to the wider professional skills required by the dancer to build a career beyond the programme.

21	Distinctive Features The Dance programme's primary aim is to prepare the students with the necessary skills to work as a professional dancer by allowing them the time to practice and hone these skills in a safe and supportive environment. This programme aims to produce graduates with excellent dance skills alongside advancing the students creativity and artistry in devising their own work. The programme is predominantly a practical dance course delivered over 24 hours per week. The extended delivery hours give the student time to acquire the broad range of dance and choreography skills required to become a professional practitioner. The programme boasts several distinctive features amongst other higher education dance courses, particularly the focus on the student's identity and developing a sense of 'self' as a dancer. They will explore the impact of culture and history on non-western dance styles in 'Dance Ethnography', develop their personal practice and methods to communicate through dance throughout the choreographic modules, in particular 'Create and Narrate' and a personal approach to movement through 'Somatic Practices'. This has been well received by stakeholders, distinctive amongst other offers, and important to the contemporary industry. The programme delivers extended skills linked to professional performance, and trains dancers to be multi-skilled in response to the evolving industry. Employers demand that dancers have a range of performance skills and this is reflected in the content of the 'Popular Movement Styles' and 'Chichi Circus' modules which develop the student's skills in a range of practices. The programme is structured to enable the student to perform and create dance for emerging technologies and digital media to equip the graduate with the skills to work in a changing industry. The students will enjoy state of the art facilities at our brand new purpose built studios and theatre in Leeds' Cultural Quarter, situated next door to Leeds Playhouse, Red Ladder, Yorkshire Dance, Northern Ballet and Phoenix Dance. The programme benefits greatly from associations with these companies, which will provide the students with experiences and opportunities, and develop their professional network to support them on graduation. Leeds City College's new Creative Arts campus is located within the heart of the Cultural Quarter of Leeds, and places the student amongst the performing arts industry in Leeds, with college links to the Leeds Playhouse, Phoenix Dance Theatre, Leeds Dance Partnership, Northern Ballet, Yorkshire Dance, and the independent companies such as Live Art Bistro. The dance programme will be delivered within this environment where students will enjoy state-of-the-art facilities at our brand new purpose built campus, which boasts a 150-seat theatre and gallery space, 2 dance studios and 2 music recording studios plus a number of other subject specific facilities.

In addition to this, the programme benefits greatly from direct associations and hands on contact with small, medium and large-scale dance companies; independent practitioners; theatres and organisations based within Yorkshire and the UK. Specific performance opportunities will be targeted for local main stages, in particular those of the Stanley and Audrey Burton Theatre, Yorkshire Dance and City Varieties Theatre. This will create an 'open door' approach to the students finding work within the industry once they have graduated.
